The screenshot shows the CollegeBoard dashboard for a user named Ima. The main section displays the SAT with Essay score of 1010, with sub-scores of 490 for Evidence-Based Reading and Writing and 520 for Math. A red arrow points to the 'View Details' button. Below this, there are four cards for other scores: Old SAT (530 CR, 590 Math, 540 Writing), SAT Subject Test - Chemistry (670 Total), PSAT/NMSQT (860 Total, 380 EBRW, 480 Math), and Old PSAT/NMSQT (53 CR, 50 Math, 45 Writing).

Then click on the “Download Report” button

The screenshot shows the 'Score Report for SAT with Essay' page for March 6, 2016. A red arrow points to the 'Download Report' button in the top right corner. The report is divided into three sections: 'Your Total Score' (1010, range 970-1050), 'Your Evidence-Based Reading and Writing Score' (490, benchmark 480, range 460-520), and 'Your Math Score' (520, benchmark 530, range 490-550). Each section includes a progress bar and a color key. The EBRW section indicates the user is on track for college readiness, while the Math section indicates they are close but need to strengthen skills.

How Did I Score Compared to Others?

A percentile is a number between 1 and 99 that shows how your score ranks compared to other students. It represents the percentage of students whose scores are equal to or below yours. For example, if your Math score percentile is 57 that means 57 percent of test-takers have Math scores equal to or below yours.

You'll see two percentiles:

The Nationally Representative Sample Percentile shows how your score compares to the scores of all U.S. students in your grade, including those who don't typically take the test.

SAT® User Percentile — National shows how your score compares to the scores of students who typically take the test.

Will My Scores Change and Why?

Tests are not exact measures, and many factors can affect your score. After all, no two days are the same, and if you took the SAT once a week for a month your scores would change.

That's why it helps to think of your true score as a range from a few points below to a few points above the score earned. Score ranges show how your score can change with repeated testing, assuming

The Evidence-based Reading and Writing benchmark is 480 while the Math benchmark is 530. This means if you score at or above the benchmark, you're on track to be ready for college when you graduate high school. If you score below the benchmark, you can still get back on track by focusing on areas where you didn't perform well. Use the detailed feedback in your online score report to see which skills you need to work on most.
